Cosy Dens (Pelíšky)

Two families live in a two-storey villa in Prague. The fathers stand on opposite ideological sides. Mr. Šebek, a simple-minded officer, has a teenage son and supports the socialist establishment. Mr. Kraus, a choleric, former resistance fighter with a bitter war experience, is the father of a teenage daughter and is a staunch anticommunist. Each of them thinks he is always right under any and all circumstances, and their wary, loving wives try to curb any consequential conflict. The children of these eternal rivals don't have any ideological hang-ups, as they share a common fascination with rebellious, capitalist 'flower children'. In the midst of first loves and family trauma, the fateful events of the 1968 Soviet occupation change everyone's life forever.
