Gnome (Trpaslík)

A six-part, original comedy series set in the town of Nymburk, where the inhabitants are menaced by the discovery of a supernatural force. An ordinary family from Nymburk. Jarda and Katka Staněk. They run a shop selling rope in an alley by the square. They don't exactly see eye to eye in either their business or family strategies though, to put it mildly. Their 15-year-old son, Luděk, is a fourth-year student at the local high school; he wants to become a hip hop artist, and feels misunderstood. Their daughter, Janička, hopes against all odds to become a lawyer like her uncle, Vladimír Novotný, the most dreaded lawyer in Nymburk. Vladimír's beautiful wife Pavlína wants something very much, but has no idea what. Grandpa Václav knows what he wants, though. He loves porridge above all else, but not the way they make it in the seniors' home. As it tends to be, the Staněks and their relatives, friends and neighbors aren't all that happy with their lives. But of course, when push comes to shove, no one ever thinks things could get any worse.
