THE PROFESSOR (Docent)

A serial killer has been on the rampage in the city for years. All leads lead to a dead end. The chief of police is trying to build a new team, to which he assigns a young female detective and a professor two generations older who teaches the subject Killer Profile and has never been in action. She acts faster than she thinks. He sometimes thinks more than necessary. So, they are still arguing. The chief would like to fire them both, but he can't, so he hopes that working together as a tandem will disgust them enough to resign. However, the otherness gives them an advantage in the investigation. Will they be able to find the serial killer and join the investigation team? A significantly different detective story from a popular setting.
